Grill Maintenance Key to Years of Enjoyment

When you make a decision to purchase a new car, you likely consider the car an investment – something you'll probably have for many years. You garage it, if possible, keep it cleaned and get regular service on it to protect your investment, because you understand that by providing regular maintenance on it, you ensure it will last and serve your needs well into the future.

Care, cleaning and maintenance of all gas appliances is necessary and is especially important for outdoor products like Fire Magic grills.

Tasks like burning off residual food/grease particles and cleaning the cooking grids should be performed each time the grill is used. Cleaning interior components also needs to be done on a periodic basis including a “deep cleaning” at least annually, to unclog the burner ports so foods cook evenly, without hotspots. In general, a well-maintained grill is ultimately more hygienic and can even be helpful in keeping critters out of the grill housing.

Please review the attached Care, Cleaning and Maintenance Guide for a more complete outline of what needs to be done to keep Fire Magic grills in tip top shape for many years.

Fire Magic in the Media

As the author of over 30 books on grilling, the star of a popular BBQ television show, on-air interviews and so on, Steven Raichlen stays pretty busy! Additionally, as host and instructor of BBQ University, the annual event of personalized, hands-on grilling instruction, Steven has even more irons in the fire, so to speak.

As talented as he is, it's simply not possible to do it all, so he relies on staff to help him accomplish everything on his business to-do list. One of his team members - Steve Nestor - has been deemed The Fire Wrangler. You can read all about what his job entails while he shares his opinion on what he thinks are the best features in a Fire Magic grill.

More of Steven's video recipes are available - check the Project Fire website for a list of local stations airing the show.
